The Canary Islands 'A Spanish Paradise'

The Canary Islands are Spain's tropical paradise, colonised and populated by Spaniards, they lie 1,150 km off the East coast of Africa.

The Canaries consist of seven islands; The province of Las Palmas brings together the major island of Gran Canaria and the lesser islands of Lanzarote and Fuerteventura; The province of Santa Cruz de Tenerife consist of the satellites islands of La Gomera, La Palma and Hierro.

Within the archipelago there is a variety so extreme, that it is easiest to refer to it as a mini continent.

You can also explore the Canaries vegetation. Volcanic islands, semi-deserts and sand dunes by the sea shore. Tenerife is one of the most beautiful of The Canary Islands and here some useful information about visiting the island.

Where to stay:

Hotel Volcano: Double room, continental breakfast, swimming pool, mini golf course, 300m from the beach. Prices start at £53 (per night). Playa de las Americas.

Eating:

La Tascana de Mi Abuelo: This is a good place to try out tapas (traditional Spanish food) and other homemade Spanish dishes. It has a warm and happy atmosphere. Las Americas.

Drinking:

Stella's: It's a friendly bar offering good food at good prices, Stella's makes the best fresh and baked fish on the island. Las Americas.

Nightlife:

The Celts Tavern: This is the place where those line dancing lessons come in handy. Las Americas.

Festivals:

Music Festival of the Canary Island's (June): A classical music festival with some of the best orchestras and performers in Europe.

Sabandeno Festival: Folk music festival with groups from all over Europe and Spain.
